Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 06 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
A cold night and day to come.

This Evening and Tonight:
Remaining dry through the evening and night, with skies clearing to give cold and frosty conditions with patchy mist, freezing fog and, perhaps, some icy conditions overnight. Light winds throughout. Minimum temperature -4 deg C (25 deg F).

Thursday:
A frosty start with any fog slow to clear. A dry, cold day with sunny spells. Turning cloudy by dusk with some patchy rain and hill snow by late evening. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Outbreaks of rain, snow, and sleet for many on Friday. Largely dry through Saturday. Cold across these days with sunny spells, and overnight frosts. Turning cloudy and milder on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.